Arts in August Brings Free Concerts to Lincoln Park!

Tremont West partners each year with our Ward 3 Councilman, Kerry McCormack, LAND Studio and Cleveland Public Theatre to present free professional dance, theater and music in Lincoln Park to the public during the month of August.

Executive Artists Director of Cleveland Public Theatre, Raymond Bobgan, is the curator of the performances. Opening night will be Cleveland Public Theater’s Student Theatre Enrichment Program performing After the Shadow, created and performed by the 2018 STEP. The story follows three sisters as they battle a fearsome monster in the belly of a lynching, challenge a heinous queen, and encounter a magical woman, giver and taker of life. The sisters must confront death to discover hidden sides of themselves. Inspired by traditional stories of Greece, Sumer, and Russia, After the Shadow is a moving tale with song, dance, and live performances. Lincoln trust and love in the face of fear and hate as Cleveland youth celebrate the light, even within the darkness. The opening weekend also includes a performance by Cleveland Shakespeare Festival of TWELFTH NIGHT, directed and directed by Jay Badger, and choreographed by K. C SF closed 2018 season with us in Lincoln Park. It always proves to be a festive evening.

The dance weekend kicks off Friday night with Inlet Dance, their program includes Birds in a Field... (Excerpt from Nature Displays 2014), Motherless Child (2000), and the Tuesdays in Tremont participants: Beviamo, Hanna - Carolyn Bentley, the Tremont Trek Home Tour and Karen Moss, LAND Studio, Medical Mutual, State Culture, Ohio Arts Council, Forest City, Third Federal

We would like to thank the residents of Cuyahoga County through a public grant from Cuyahoga Arts & Culture.

A Taste of Tremont's Future

By Khalid Hawthorne

On Sunday, July 15, I had the opportunity to experience one of those beautiful occasions in Cleveland. A day when people from various cultures and social-economic backgrounds come together to celebrate with food, music, and good old fashioned people watching. And there are always interesting people and things to see...looking at you “Guitar Man Super Hero”. Through all of the activity and people, I could not help but wonder “Isn’t this how we are supposed to live?”

There are always one-off events like this in Cleveland that bring together people from all over the city to celebrate its neighborhoods, parks, businesses, etc. The biggest event that I can remember has to be the NBA Championship! Seeing people openly embrace and high-five random people because they all shared in the joy of Cleveland finally breaking the Championship Curse. Yet that was one-a-time event.

Tremont is a neighborhood that is fairly diverse from numbers perspective. It is approximately 60% White (and people of various cultures associated with this designation), 18% Latino and 16% African-American. In other words, it closely matches the current demographic makeup of America as a whole. While the Taste of Tremont drew people from all over the metropolitan area and beyond. I can guess that the overall distribution was close to those numbers in attendance.

It was a beautiful sight to see every one mingling and sharing this common experience of food and music. These are two things that cross any preconceived cultural barriers. I always say sports is the third thing as witnessed by the championship post-game celebration and parade. My question becomes “Why isn’t this experience an everyday thing in Cleveland?”

We share more in common and can learn many more things from each other by having simple conversations. Our businesses thrive by having more people on the streets throughout the day. The overwhelming majority of people within this community want the same things out of their daily lives. They want to share similar experiences.

In order to make Tremont a more welcoming community, we should start greeting all of our neighbors and visitors with a simple hello. Yes I said every single one. A conversation is not necessary but you never know what you might learn from a stranger. Regardless we should all work to make every day festive and inclusive. We should also enjoy all of the things that make us different while working to find more things that we do have in common like sports, music and good food! Until the next Taste of Tremont...

TREMONT HISTORY PROJECT
Article will continue in September along with pictures.

AN EARLY TREMONT ARTIST:
Anthony William Eterovich was born in Cleveland, Ohio on April 2, 1916 the youngest of three surviving children. His parents, George and Anna, had emigrated to the Dalmatian coast of what is now Croatia; in Cleveland, George worked in the steel mills. Somehow recognizing the essence of a gift in his son, Clavanaugh Eterovich saw to it that, from the time he was three, Anthony had a pencil in his hand and that he was provided with the materials he needed to express himself on paper. His father had a stroke during Eterovich’s teen years. All three children were consequently sent to work. Anthony peeled potatoes at a local grocer’s. George Eterovich died in 1936. During this turbulent time in his family, Anthony met and studied with John Teyrall at the Merrick House School. He also worked as Cartoonist for the school paper, the LINCOLN LOG.

In 1934, Eterovich won a scholarship to the Cleveland School of Art where he received a degree in portrait art. In 1938, in addition, he began exhibiting in the Cleveland Museum of Art May Shows in 1934 at the very young age of 18. Over the course of his lengthy career Mr. Eterovich had a total of 65 works exhibited in May Shows, from 1934 to 1971. To earn money while in art school Eterovich started teaching at the Merrick House Settlement. He was encouraged as an artist and teacher by Victor Schreckengost who occasionally classes over to Anthony for a few hours each week.

During World War II, Eterovich was drafted. While in the US Army, he achieved the rank of Sergeant Tech Four and completed more than thirty portraits of his peers, colonels, captains and a three star general. He was called upon to draw maps and create topographical visualizations of landing and occupied areas and silhouette identification of enemy aircraft and other vehicles. In addition, he taught French while stationed in Indian Town Gap, Pennsylvania from 1943-1944 and then Camp Gordon Johnston in Florida from 1944-1945. After the army, Anthony went on to receive a Bachelor of Science in Education and a Masters Degree in Art Education from Western Reserve University in 1947. In 1947, he won a First Price Purchase Award in the May Show exhibition at the Cleveland Museum of Art in the Etching category for Suzanne. He continued his education with honors in extended studies at Ohio University in 1948-1949 and the New York Art Students League from 1950-1954. In 1950, he married Alice Troyan, who had recently graduated from Kent State University with a major in Physical Education.

The pair spent their summers in New York City. Eterovich studied at the League and took his work to the Who’s Who of art dealers at the time, including Eterovich studied at the League and took his work to the Who’s Who of art dealers at the time, including Dharma Van Dein. Ryan worked with the rest of the neighborhood along Scaramento Road between Clark Avenue and I-490 on a summer gathering and celebration. Ryan is graduating from Tri-C and starting CSU in the fall to pursue a degree in Business Economics. Ryan, it has been a pleasure to work with you and best of luck in all your future endeavors!

Convergence-continuum presents the world premiere of The Casual Tree Ward by Cleveland playwright Robert Hawkes. The goddess Freyja (or is she?) is tending Yggdrasil, the World Ash Tree (or is it?), trying to protect it from increasing drought. An itinerant water-bearer tries to persuade Freyja to go with him to where water is plentiful. She refuses. Does the world really depend on this single tree, or is this a self-generating myth? All is made clear (or is it?) when Odin, the One-Eyed God (or is he?) shows up to resolve all questions and save us all (or can he?).

The Casual Tree Ward opens Friday, August 24 and runs Thurs-Sat at 8 pm through September 15 at the Liminis Theater, 2438 Scranton Rd. Fri & Sat tickets are $20 general admission, $15 seniors (65+), $10 students. Thurs tickets are $15, $12 and $8. Reservations and information at 216-687-0074 and convergence-continuum.org.
